MRS. K'KINLEY BETTER.

Physicians and Friends Think She Will Pull Through All Right.

By Wire to The Telegram. San Francisco, May 18.--Renewed anxiety aroused early this morning by distinctly unfavorable reports from Mrs. McKinley's sick room. The physicians expected a crisis today. Another sinking spell will, it is feared prove fatal, owing to her extreme weakness. The midnight bulletin says "As night wears on Mrs. McKinley became restless and the morning is looked forward to with apprehension. She did not take nourishment as freely as previously. Powerful stimulants, including oxygen were administered. The bone fclen on her hand spread and discharged from another place. The new wound has been lanced." Early this morning the following was issued: "Mrs. McKinley during the past hour has shown distressing signs of fever. Unless the fever diminishes, the president will not attend the launching of the Ohio.

San Francisco, May 18.--Secretary Cortelyou gave out the statement this morning that Drs. Hirschfelder, Gibbons and Cushing met Dr. Rixey at eight this morning and found Mrs. McKinley's condition decidedly improved since last evening. Henry T. Scott said Mrs. McKinley was in an improved condition this morning. It is announced that the president will attend the launching of the Ohio this afternoon.

When a Policeman May Shoot.

Charleston News and Courier.

A question which is constantly coming up in cities and towns was decided by Judge Ralson, in a Philadelphia court, a few days ago. It was the question of the right or privilege of a policeman or peace officer to shoot at an escaping prisoner or a person fleeing arrest.

In the Philadelphia case two officers had pleaded voluntary manslaughter for killing of one of two men who had refused, when fleeing from them, to heed their order to halt. They satisfied the judge that they thought they were acting under the law, but he disabused their minds of that impression. He said:

"A policeman can't shot a man simply because he can't reach him any other way, and you had no right to fire under the circumstances. You are given firearms for your own protection, and in some cases may be justified in shooting a prisoner, but he must be a prisoner, and must be attacking you or trying to escape. Under ordinary circumstances you have no right to shoot. The court appreciates the danger which an officer at times is required to face, but that does not give him the right to fire upon a criminal or supposed criminal in an effort to arrest him."

This makes it plain that an officer cannot shoot a man in order to arrest him; but it appears to warrant an officer in shooting any man who, having been arrested, and being therefore; a "prisoner," then "tries to escape." Assuming this to be the law, it would follow that a policeman would not be justified in shooting a burglar--or "supposed burglar--seen emerging from a tank or a store, in order to stop his flight and arrest him; but he would be justified in shooting a pick-pocket who having been arrested tries to get away from him.

The decision appears to leave something to be decided.

SAD END OF FATHER PHILLIPS

FOUND DEAD IN AN UNUSED ROOM IN NEW YORK

A Fake Doctor Now Under Arrest for His Murder--Coroner's Inquest Reveals No Marks of Violence.

New York, May 17.--The body of a man found late last night in a house in Ninth avenue, has been identified as that of Rev. Edward S. Phillips, of St. Gabriel's church, Hazleton, Pa., who recently had a conference with J. Pierpont Morgan, in reference to the threatened strike in the iron and coal regions of Pennsylvania. Kirk Stanley, a massage operator, in whose rooms the body was found, is under arrest as a suspicious person. Decomposition had advanced so far when the body was discovered that cursory examination was not sufficient to reveal the cause of death. Stanley has been subjected to a rigid examination and is said to have told conflicting stories. Mrs. Bernius, from whom Stanley leased four rooms, in one of which the body was found, says that her tenant claimed to be from San Francisco and called himself Dr. Stanley. He was accompanied by a young woman whom he introduced as his wife. The body was discovered by Mrs. Bernius' daughter, who went into Stanley's apartments to remove some bedding which was hanging out of the window.

The police were immediately notified and a search of the body disclosed a number of papers. Among them was a letter from John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers, and addressed to Rev. Dr. Edwards S. Phillips, Hazleton, Pa. There were also several telegrams from Mitchell addressed to the priest, a half-fare railway coupon, such as is issued to clergymen, and several receipts made out in Dr. Phillips' name. Stanley was arrested at midnight. The prisoner seemed to be suffering from the effects of drink or drugs. His manner was that of a man who was badly dazed. He said his name was Kirk Stanley, and that he had come to this city about a year and a half ago. He said they called him "Doctor," but he had no diploma. He was a massage operator and intended to open an office here.

The body of Father Phillips was removed to the morgue. Dr. A. F. Dougherty, of Wilkesbarre, who said he is a nephew of the priest, identified the body. He said Father Phillips had come to the city to buy some statuary for his church.

Coroner Bausch committed Stanley to the Tombs in default of $10,000 bail, to await the result of the autopsy.

After the autopsy on the body of Father Phillips had been completed, Coroner Bausch announced that no marks of violence had been found on the body. The condition of the organs showed that the man had suffered from chronic nephritis and fatty liver. The coroner said, that owing to the suspicious circumstances surrounding the case, it was deemed advisable to have the vital organ analyzed. Stanley was arraigned in police court and was remanded to the custody of the coroner. He refused to make any statement in court.

W. C. T. U. DEPARTMENT.

The officers of the Ohio orphan asylum recently stated that they had no trouble to find homes for the orphan girls in their charge, but that it was impossible to find homes for all the boys.

Only the exceptionally handsome or bright boy is wanted for adoption. As one of the officers concisely stated it, "Boys are not appreciated."

Isn't this true in city, town, or country? Our girls are going to school and college, even when their parents are far from wealthy. But the brother of more than two-thirds of these girls are doing odd jobs around town, or working for day wages. True, they earn something in this way for themselves or their parents. But if the good of the boys were to be consulted, the parents ought rather to have lived on bread and water, and worn patches three deep, than to have handicapped their sons with the lack of a good education. Why shouldn't boys have a chance to rise in the world as well as girls?

Mothers watch after their small daughters very carefully, taking much pains that their associates are of the best, but these same mothers will, in many cases, allow their young sons to run about the streets and play by the hour with boys that are bad, even incipient thieves and drunkards.

Isn't it true that many fathers stand by and hear without protest the obscene tales of other men, told before their half-grown sons. Had it been the boy's sisters who were present the narrators would have been promptly hushed up, perhaps thrashed for, "trying to mar a girl's innocence."

Evidently a boy's innocence does not count.

Suppose a young girl of our acquaintance should be enticed into a saloon and made drunk. Why our indignation would know no bounds. The public does not think it makes much difference when it is one of our boys. He should be able to take care of himself.

Why not protect the boy? Isn't he worth saving as well as the girl? Is a lazy man a more edifying sight than a lazy woman? Is an oath in a man's mouth less blasphemous than in a woman's? Is a man drunkard cleaner or purer than a woman drunkard?

An observer asks, "What is the matter with local option? Why cannot temperance people concentrate their forces upon that instead of aiming at national or State prohibition?" The matter with local option has always been that it is too local and too optional.

A Virginia Preacher Sentenced to the Penitentiary.

Washington, May 17.—Rev. Liston D. Bass, recently convicted of using the mails for purpose to defraud, today was sentenced to three years in the Moundsville, W. Va., penitentiary, and to pay fines amounting to $1,000.

The case was appealed. Judge Barnard in pronouncing sentence scathingly denounced the prisoner. Mr. Bass is the pastor of two churches in Virginia.

Mercury AND Potash

Everybody knows that Mercury is a dangerous medicine even when administered in very small doses, and few constitutions can stand it for any length of time. Potash produces inflammation of the stomach and bowels, and a dangerous form of dyspepsia and often chronic diarrhoea follow its use.

Now, the doctors will tell you if you have Contagious Blood Poison you must take these minerals for two years or longer; first, a course of Mercury, and when your teeth get so sensitive and sore that you can't eat, and the gums have a spongy, unnatural appearance, you are told to stop and a change to Potash is made. When the stomach rebels you are put on Mercury again, and so on ad infinitum, or until the system becomes so thoroughly saturated with these poisonous drugs that the most disgusting sores break out on the body, the bones become diseased, and the muscles and joints are racked with the most torturing pains. Mercury and Potash drive the eruptions and blotches from the skin, but the virus remains in the blood and the reappearance of the old symptoms and the occasional sore mouth show that the poison is still active, and you can never hope to completely eradicate it by this method of treatment.

When I was about twenty-one years of age, or eighteen years ago, I contracted Blood Poison in a bad form, and am satisfied that the rapid progress the disease was making would soon have made me a life-long invalid or ended my life. As my system came under the influence of S. S. S., the sores, spots, and pimples gradually disappeared and soon no evidence of the disease was left. I am now thirty-nine years old, and have seen no signs of it during the past eighteen years. S. S. S. does all you claim for it.

WM. EMERSON, Pevely, Mo.

S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known, and we offer $1,000 for proof that it contains any mineral ingredient whatever. The general health improves as the Specific purges the system of impurities, and as new, rich blood begins to flow in the veins the unsightly sores and other evidences of blood poison disappear; strength returns and you are forever rid of this loathsome disease.

Our Home Treatment Book on Contagious Blood Poison tells you all about the symptoms, different stages, etc., of this disease. We will mail you a copy free.

If you need advice or special directions, write our physicians; it will cost you nothing and may hasten your cure. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

THE BEST REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM. QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN.

All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. Geo. F. Parson & Co., druggists of this place, to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommend it so highly that I thought I would try it. I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." or sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised me to try Electric Bitters, and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cts., guaranteed at C. E. Holton's drug store.

CAUGHT A DREADFUL COLD.

Marion Kooke, manager for T. M. Thompson, a large importer of fine millinery at 1658 Milwaukee Avenue, Chicago, says: "During the late severe weather I caught a dreadful cold which kept me awake at night and made me unfit to attend my work during the day. One of my milliners was taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a severe cold at that time, which seemed to relieve her so quickly that I bought some for myself. It acted like magic and I began to improve at once. I am now entirely well and feel very pleased."

SATURDAY, MAY 18.

Mr. Chas. W. Schwab, president of the new billion-dollar steel trust, admitted in his testimony before the industrial commission last Saturday that American manufacturers sell their products in foreign markets cheaper than they do at home and said that this had never been denied, but, he said, the export trade is conducted at a loss and that the manufacturers lost money on it in order to keep their works running all the time. They might do this for a little while, in order to keep their forces together, as is the custom of some cotton manufacturers in seasons of depression; but to represent, as is to be inferred from what Mr. Schwab says, that they lose money for a steady thing on the foreign trade, rather than shut down, is rather too great a strain upon public credulity. In short, the man who believes it ought to be bored for the simples.—Charlotte Observer.

We had faith in Mr. Schwab, and for the sake of that, we hope that his statements referred to by The Observer were so gratified as to make it not appear that he put forth the idea that American manufacturers claim to run their foreign trade at a loss all the time.

BLACK CATS IN MEETING.

The inquisitiveness of the Charlotte Observer, which in its own vanity that paper calls a desire to promote science and knowledge of useful variety, has not lead it to a discussion of why church services go in ruts, and for the edification of those of a similiary inquiring mind, we present its remarks:

There appears elsewhere in The Observer today a black cat story, the scene of which is laid in a Philadelphia church, the cat refusing to be driven from the building, preferring to starve there to finding plenty to eat outside. Perhaps, however, the reason it wouldn't leave was that it was after the church mouse. But what we started out to note was that this cat was allowed to spoil an entire church service in its meandering and meowings from aisle to aisle, attracting the attention of the congregation and distracting the congregation itself. Yet the pastor proceeded with his sermon unscathed until the "finally" thereof. The common sense thing would have been to have stopped the sermon until the ushers had put the cat out. This would have caused a short interruption—and of course an amusing one to those who get amused on slight provocation—but it would have been preferable to having the entire sermon spoiled.

Why is it that church services are so often allowed to run in a groove, to get into a rut? Of course, now there are some sources of church-service interruption that are utterly unavoidable. Among these are babies and bats. A bat must simply be allowed to flap its vampire wings at its sweet will until it flies by some fortunate accident against an open window and stumbles outside. It rarely has sense enough to butt its way in again. A baby must be tolerated because its mother must not be shut off from church privileges. Stories that cause accidents at the electric light plant or tangle the wires and turn the currents awry, are, too, of course, unavoidable. Such a mishap occurred Sunday night at the Presbyterian church in Concord, as was recorded in yesterday's Observer, when, just as the choir started up the hymn, "Sometimes a light surprises The Christian while he sings," the lights in the church went out and the congregation had to be dismissed.

The noted evangelist, Munhall, used to attribute the various kinds of interruptions of church services to Satan—cats, bats, babies, storms and all. He was making such an allegation as this to a congregation once when a man with new boots came in. The speaker paused until the man squeaked up into the amen corner. Then he remarked: "Brethren, this illustrates what I have just been saying. The devil is in that man's new shoes!"

But dogs and cats can be driven out and we rise to make the point that it is the common sense thing to do.

We have all no doubt asked ourselves the question of why services in the various protestant churches, or more particularly the services in any given church are always exactly like the preceding ones. The choir sings a little, the congregation then sings a little, then prayer, the choir sings a little more the officials take up collection, and the minister proceeds with his discourse of a specified number of minutes. One can never understand why it requires exactly the same number of minutes to develop all subjects. At the evening service the same order is gone through with, to be repeated on the following and on all Sundays. If the singing were put after the sermon or the prayer first or occasionally the sermon left off, or any other change made, no doubt we should all feel horrified, but why there is no apparent reason. In all respectfulness we ask, is there any special reason either in scripture or in experience why this should be, or has it been shown that one way is the best and should in no way be departed from, or would a minister who undertook to give anything different be classed as attempting to do something sensational?

GIVES GAMBLERS AWAY.

Society Man of Savannah Tells Grand Jury All About the Gambling Dens of that City.

Atlanta Constitution.

The biggest sensation in the gambling line that has occurred in Savannah in some years developed today when it became known that Horace Hunter, a well-known and popular young society man, had gone before the grand jury and had unbesomed himself freely to that body as to his knowledge of the various gaming resorts. Mr. Hunter's knowledge of these places appeared to be quite extensive and is furthermore said to have been quite costly. It could hardly have cost him as much however, as the result of his revelations to the grand jury is likely to cost those afflicted thereby.

Mr. Hunter was before the grand jury last Friday, but the matter was kept a graveyard secret until that body met again this afternoon and returned the indictments. Bench warrants were immediately issued. Charles Odell, Gad Bryan, John McBride, T. O. McBride, Sim Sternberg, Maie Henderson, Jack Monahan, Julius Rosenthal and James L. Doss, all well known and leading lights in the sporting fraternity, were indicted for keeping gaming houses. Thomas Daniels, John H. Hays, C. R. McBride and a well-known lady, who owns considerable property, were indicted for permitting the use of their property for gaming purposes. All the parties indicted were arrested yesterday afternoon, with the exception of the lady referred to, who is out of the city, and Jack Monahan and Maie Henderson, who are engaged in piloting a string of horses around the country.

The action of the grand jury is literally and truly a bombshell to most of the gamblers indicted, for the reason that they have all been there before many a time. Some have jail sentences hanging over them now, and others are under threats of courts that they will be sent to jail the next time they appear.

There was much sadness and gloom in the camp of the gamblers last night in consequence of this state of affairs.

It does not appear that the Sam Jones meeting, which is now in progress, was in any way responsible for the action of either Mr. Hunter or the grand jury. In fact, practically everything in connection with the matter except the formal presentation of the indictments, had transpired prior to the beginning of the Jones meeting. Mr. Hunter, it seems, was animated simply by a desire for revenge, having lost considerable money at those places, and being desirous of placing a gulf between himself and the gamblers.

The Winston Elks reached the city yesterday afternoon, and paraded the streets immediately upon their arrival. The procession was headed by a band. When the curtain was rung up at the Academy last night, the house was crowded with Greensboro's amusement loving people. The Tallest Soldier.

Atlanta Journal.

Atlanta has a curiosity in the shape of the tallest man in the United States army and one of the tallest in the United States.

John R. Melvin, a private in Company G, of the Twenty-sixth regiment now being recruited at Fort McPherson for foreign service, is admitted to be the tallest man in the service of Uncle Sam. He is 6 feet 7 inches in his stocking feet.

Melvin comes from Fayetteville, N. C., where he was born about 25 years ago, and where he lived until recruited into the army at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war. He was in the Fourth Virginia infantry, and at that time he enjoyed the distinction of being the tallest man in the regiment, corps and division in which he was assigned. For twelve months he served in the Virginia regiment and was finally given honorable discharge when so many of the volunteer regiments were dismissed.

The Gallant Hampton.

Gen. Wade Hampton came from a sick-bed to attend the gathering at Columbia, S. C., under the Southern Cross. The old soldiers must hear from him and he was compelled to comply but briefly by reason of his health. At the close he showed what he was—the sort of man hood there was in him. General Hampton closed with these off hand but glowing words:

"Now, my friends, I can say nothing more to you; I have come from a sick bed that I might meet you and tell you I have never forgotten the old lang syne, when we camped together. I can never forget those days. They say our cause has been lost, but a just cause never dies. It will live forever, and I pray to God that in the hearts of all the men who fought so bravely they will remember that though the cause on earth is lost it will long go down the pages of history as one of the noblest and greatest struggles and made by the noblest army that ever trod this green earth."

A PALE-FACE GIRL

may be almost safely set down as wanting red in her blood. If subject to dizziness, fainting, shortness of breath on slight exertion, no doubt remains.

To want red in the blood is to fail of the good of one's food. Her food is not nourishing her. She needs a change.

The easiest change she can get, and one of the best, is Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

It gives her the upper hand in the contest—her food has the upper hand now—she is pale no more.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

NAME FOR KODOL.

The only instance on record when a postoffice has been named after a patent medicine, was last year, when in Wetzel county, W. Va., a new post-office was established and named Kodol, after the famous Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, manufactured by E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago. It had given such satisfactory results that the name was unanimously selected by the people for the new office and adopted by the department at Washington, D. C.

Joshua Baker's Downfall

By Charles J. Adams.

JOSHUA BAKER'S downfall began with the election of women to the school board. In the little Massachusetts hill town where he lived he had ruled with a rod of iron, since the unlucky day when he was sent to represent his district in the legislature. That was his introduction into public life, and it created within him an insatiable appetite for office.

He had been first selectman and chairman of the school board for more years than we younger people could remember, and in both capacities rode roughshod over his companions in office. There was a magnetic power about the man, or he would not have been reelected year after year. He was an efficient and faithful public servant, but association with him in the administration of town affairs was an unpleasant task, which few craved.

The novelty of placing women on the school board strongly appealed to the people of the town—we will call it Ridgeville. The first year the plan was adopted, Mrs. Abel Ayres and Miss Samantha Dock became Joshua Baker's partners in office. The former possessed a fine education and great culture, but was totally lacking in fighting ability. This deficiency was more than made up, however, by Miss Samantha, who had a very determined mind of her own, and enjoyed nothing better than a tilt with her neighbors. When the result of the election was known, everybody realized that war was inevitable, and its beginning was awaited with keen expectancy. It came even sooner than was apprehended.

Joshua Baker frowned and hemmed and hawed when he read, one morning a week later, a note he had just taken from the post office.

"Dear Sir," it began. "We, the undersigned, beg leave to inform you that there will be a meeting of the school board to-morrow evening, in the selectmen's room, for organization and the transaction of routine business." and it was signed by Mrs. Abel Ayres and Miss Samantha Dock. It was written in Miss Samantha's nervous hand, and every letter breathed defiance.

The post office was filled with idlers. Joshua's face betrayed his vexation, and in response to a query as to the cause of it, he read the note aloud, in clear, deliberate voice which, nevertheless, attempted no concealment of its disgust. That was his first mistake.

"Wal, I'll be blowed!" ejaculated Elias Wiggins, the village blacksmith. "Pretty headstrong, ain't they? Takin' the reins right into their own hands."

"Indeed they are, Mr. Wiggins," replied Joshua. "Indeed they are, sir, but they will find they can gain no advantage over me by such a course. I shall not attend the meeting."

"Ye'd best not stay away," ventured Mr. Wiggins, after a short pause. "They'd be electing one of themselves chairman, and nobody knows what their nonsense. 'Pears to me ye'd ought to be there, for the safety of the public, if for no other reason."

This was a new thought to Joshua. He hemmed and frowned more violently than before.

"I believe you are right, Mr. Wiggins," he said, at last. "Yes, you are right. My obligations to the public cannot be laid aside. I will attend the meeting and," raising his voice, "my good friends, I invite you all to be present."

That was Joshua's second blunder.

It was customary in those days for the meetings of the school board to be open to the public, but the privilege was seldom taken advantage of. On this occasion, however, the selectmen's room was crowded. Mrs. Abel and Miss Samantha were at first surprised, then vexed, when they understood that Joshua had especially invited the crowd to witness their defeat. Samantha's black eyes snapped dangerously. "We may as well begin at once," she said, as Joshua, the last of the three, entered the room. "We'll ballot for chairman first."

The committeewomen and the lone committeeman seated themselves at the long table and prepared their ballots. Samantha counted them, calmly taking this responsibility upon herself. There was one vote for each of the three members. Joshua's face was a study. He had never seriously doubted that he would be elected at once, as he had been for so many years. The two women exchanged significant glances.

The result was not changed by the second ballot, nor by the third. Finally, when, after the ninth ballot, Miss Samantha announced that still there was no election, she held up her hand to stay Joshua, who was already preparing his next vote.

"One moment, Mr. Baker," she said, grimly. "I guess this has gone about far enough. We may as well understand each other right now. Neither Mrs. Ayres nor I want to be chairman. We've been voting each for the other right along, and we can keep it up a spell longer, if need be. That shows that you must have been voting for yourself."

"Yes, madam!" exclaimed the now furious Joshua. "I have been voting for myself, and I shall continue to do so, because I believe that I am the only member of the board capable of performing the duties of chairman as they should be performed."

"That's all right," interrupted Samantha. "We don't blame you a mite; and as we don't want the office we are willing to elect you on the next ballot, only you must agree to some things first. We know how you have carried on, how you have refused to put to vote motions you didn't like and bulldozed generally the other members of the committee. It's time to call a halt. If you will promise faithfully, in the presence of these people, that you have invited here, to deal with us fairly, and to conduct the meetings of this committee in a parliamentary manner, we'll elect you. If you won't promise, we can keep up the deadlock forever. What do you say?"

A titter had begun in the audience, which grew into a hearty laugh, and finally broke into open applause as Samantha ceased speaking. For a moment Joshua looked about him at the people and at the women before him, like some enraged animal who would toss them all on his horns. But seeing that his official companions held the upper hand, and that the sympathy of the people was clearly against him, he restrained himself with an effort and forced a smile to his lips.

"I gladly promise," he said, "to do whatever is right. More than that I would not promise for the highest office in the land. Let us close the discussion and prepare our tenth ballot."

Mr. Baker was unanimously elected, but the women had won a victory, and Joshua was not only defeated, but humiliated openly before the people.

Humiliated he certainly was, and sought savagely for an opportunity to take revenge. The meetings of the school board that winter were stormy ones, and it was largely to the crowds that gathered to witness the frays that Mrs. Abel and Miss Samantha owed their escape from much the same browbeating to which their predecessors had submitted. As the year rolled on and Joshua was thwarted at every point, the ridicule at his discomfiture became more open. Ridicule is a powerful factor in politics, and Joshua viewed with alarm his waning prestige. It was not until spring, however, that he saw his chance to strike a decisive blow and assert his mastership.

There had been constant difficulty that year in keeping a teacher at the Center school. One had resigned to accept a more lucrative position elsewhere, another had been taken suddenly ill, while a third had proved incapable and been dismissed. As each vacancy occurred, Mrs. Abel and Miss Samantha urged the election of a Miss Clay, of Ridgeville, a young woman admirably fitted for the position, but whose election had been strenuously opposed by Joshua. The last time he had won his point only by promising that Miss Clay should be given a trial, should another vacancy occur during the year.

Now on the opening day of the spring term, Joshua received word that the young man they had engaged was unable to appear. As he walked up-street in a quandary how to avoid keeping his former promise, he saw Mrs. Abel and Samantha ride past in the stage, apparently bound to the city. A sudden light broke in upon him. He posted messengers to the houses of his absent fellow-committeemen to call a special meeting of the board that noon, to elect a new teacher. Then, feeling sure there could be no meeting that day and that he was technically justified in acting on his own account, he himself hastened to the city, to secure a young man he had long had in mind for the position.

But Mrs. Abel and Miss Samantha had not gone to the city. They had each received a notice, like that sent to Joshua, that the teacher they had engaged had failed them, and having in mind Joshua's promise, had decided to act on their own responsibility, without further consultation. Accordingly they had merely gone down the road a mile or two, by stage, to the home of Miss Clay, where they offered her the position. In short, Miss Clay opened school that very morning, less than two hours after the regular opening hour.

Finding Joshua's message, on their return home, the two women met again, shortly afterward, at the selectmen's room, at the specified hour, but no Joshua appeared. Partly surmising the truth, and hugely enjoying their advantage, they elected Miss Clay permanent teacher, and fixed her salary with due formality.

Joshua's emotions, when he drove into town that evening with his imported teacher, defy expression. The story was soon noised about, and his new defeat redoubled the former ridicule. The upshot of the matter was that he resigned from the board in great indignation.

But that was not the end. At the next town meeting, although still a candidate for selectman, he was ignominiously defeated. Since that day he has run for several other offices, but his downfall is complete, and he has never been successful.

Southern Cotton Mills.

A dispatch from Bangor, Maine, to the New York Sun says: "A Maine man who has been employed in cotton manufacturing in Georgia says that the industry is prosperous in the South and likely to continue so, but he thinks here is no danger of the Northern plants being forced to the wall by competition from Dixie.

"Wages, says the Maine man, are about the same in Georgia as in Maine, but there the operatives work 11 hours a day instead of 10 hours, as here. A Southern operative, however, will not turn out so much work in a day as one in the North.

"No negroes are employed as operatives in the mills because they are not to be depended upon—they will work like Trojans one day and loaf the next six days. Many of the mill hands are from excellent families, and while they are generally intelligent and steady-going they are all very slow.

"The large cotton mill in the South is an institution that is there to stay, although the small mill may in time be lower cost than in the North. A mill for the Southern mills and make it possible to produce cotton goods at lower cost than in the North. A mill property that would be taxed 23 mills on the dollar in the North would escape with a tax of about 7 mills in the South. Fuel is much cheaper than in the North, good cord wood, delivered costing only about $1 a cord and soft coal $3 a ton. While there are some good water privileges, most of the mills are operated by streams.

"The South has thus far been engaged in the manufacture of coarse goods, and will continue in this line for years, to come. The time will come, however, when the cotton mills of the South will turn out as fine goods as are made anywhere."

ADVERTISING COMMENT.

By THE HUSTLER.

Messrs. J. W. Scott & Co. adds to the enjoyment of life. Read their ad today.

The Gloss Finish in Laundry work is done by the Gate City Laundry is becoming more popular every day and makes this weeks business a record breaker for this well known firm. Mr.
Fields is continually adding new machinery, and is leaving nothing undone establishments of the kind in the State.

While walking along Elm street today, mentally commenting upon the many beautiful window displays along that hustling business thoroughfare
the hustler, was particularly struck with that of Messrs. J. M. Hendrix & Co. This firm as a complimentary to the Normal College seems have so combined their college colors, white and yellow, as to produce the most pleasing effects in dress goods and draperies. As a centre piece, resting upon an artistic, white table is a large yellow vase filled with daisies from which the college colors are derived, on one side is a full sized figure having on it the regulation white commencement dress beautifully trimmed while all around are handsome white draperies over yellow.

So artistically has the artist,
Mrs. Cator, carried out the designs, one would almost imagine himself in front of Wanamaker's or Gimbel Bros., of Philadelphia.
